

DRIVE AGAINST MALARIA

Drive Against Malaria receives US $ 10.000 from Kosan Crisplant/GlocalGaz Cameroon

Unite in the fight against malaria for Africa is essential to maximize the prevention of malaria. The Drive Against Malaria (DAM) received support from the private sector in Cameroon to distribute more free treated mosquito nets and anti malaria treatment in rural areas. DAM will use this donation to support the community around Bimbia in the West Province and the Pigmy population in the East. This malaria-prevention-programme started in the first half of 2008. DAM continues her work in these areas from October 2008 until February 2009.

Kosan Crisplant was founded in 1951. With nearly 60 years experience in the market the company established the first office in Africa in 2005, Kosan Crisplant Cameroon, and later on GlacalGaz Cameroon. By replacing firewood and charcoal with LPG, consumers help reducing the current vast levels of deforestation in all African Countries. Compared to firewood, which are the most common forms of energy in Africa, LPG emits far less CO₂. Each time a 12 kg cylinder is used as alternative energy, it saves the atmosphere 138 kg of CO₂.

Drive Against Malaria

In 2008 Kosan Crisplant supported "The Drive Against Malaria" (www.tdam.org), who hand out free mosquito nets and medicine in rural areas in Africa.

In 2007 the employees of Kosan Crisplant, joined together and donated a house to a family in Congo. The new house was built in 2008, and the family moved in, in June 2008.

Did you know that ...

- Around 1 million people die from malaria each year – 90% of these people are Africans
- Malaria is Africa's leading cause of child mortality
- In rural Africa, the most effective way to fight malaria is to use insecticide-treated mosquito nets
