

DRIVE AGAINST MALARIA

April – June 2007 Angola and Democratic Republic of Congo.

21st April 2007 Eleven 4X4's with two 40ft container lorries left Luanda Angola to drive east the Malange Province of Angola.

2 Days on the road, one of the lorries containing many thousand long lasting mosquito nets drops of 1,600 at a hospital. Near Malange.

Jungle driving

Julia Samuel demonstrating how to hang nets above the sleeping place.

David Robertson with Julia giving net demonstration in village.

Julia entertains the children

Lady receives the first net for her children.

Working with Ministry of Health + NMCP Angola, ExxonMobile, PMI, The Global Fund, USAID, UNICEF and the World Health Organization.

Another village – more nets.

Happy children knowing they can have a restful night without any more bites

A supply of ACTS to treat malaria given to the health centre in Kwango DRC

Sleeping under a treated mosquito net can reduce the spread of malaria by 75% and save some of the 3,000 children who die every day of malaria.

A very special thank you too; Tropicare Esso Angola Tomorrow Design Ernst & Young
 Accountview Novartis Marquette University Wesdijk Homstyle Great lengths Een Bureau
 Communiciemiddelen Tapes Mediaproducties vof Helsport Herman Braakman Land Rover
 Y & R Sony Leif Eirik larsen Torgrim Larsen Doctors Without Borders (MSF)
 Vestergaard Frandsen & TWF.

Thanks to the supporters of Drive Against Malaria and our partners 27,600 mosquito nets were donated in the Province of Malange, over 200 nets to an orphanage in Luanda and many more nets to small communities in the north of Angola and along the Kwango River in Congo.

